Spring 2008

Dear student,

The Writing Center can help you strengthen your writing skills. You may bring in your draft of a writing assignment, and we will select a few areas of grammar or composition to discuss with you. Later, you can make revisions and write a new draft that will more clearly and effectively express your ideas.

A great way to improve your writing is to revise a paper that your professor has graded; ask us for more information about how you can do this. We also have a collection of articles that many students use to write “practice” essays at home. Ask us for one of these articles, and then later when you are ready, bring in your “practice” essay for a writer’s conference. We will review with you principles of grammar and composition according to your individual needs as a writer.

For more information, drop by or send an e-mail message to RPetercsak@middlesexcc.edu.

Sincerely,

The Writing Center
